

Kenge Adams

is the CEO and Founder of Connect Business Consulting and a Co-Founder of the National STEAM & Dream program. Kenge has over 20 years of experience in project management and developing and maintaining community and corporate partnerships for Fortune 500 companies, non-profits, and community-based organizations such as the Muddy Waters Museum in Chicago to maximize their outcomes and impacts. The National STEAM & Dream programs and summits support the next generation of leaders in Science, Technology, Art, and Math (STEAM) and improve racial equity gaps to drive social and emotional well-being. It also aims to educate participants to foster economic change in diverse communities.

As an avid volunteer, Kenge values building and maintaining relationships. She is a member of Alpha Kappa Alpha Sorority, Inc., Tempo Milwaukee, and the Milwaukee Chapter of The Links Inc. Her board memberships include Bublr Bikes, the Sherman Phoenix Foundation, and Woodland Schools. As a life member of Jack and Jill of America, Inc., with over 16 years of membership, Kenge served on the Milwaukee Chapter's Executive Board as the Chapter President, Treasurer, Corresponding Secretary, and Financial Secretary.

Kenge is married to Dr. Reginald Adams, and they have two children, Sabrina and Maxwell. She enjoys biking, yoga, and spending time with family and friends.
